

CITATION GUIDELINES

Since 2002 (issue 59) the RGDE has adopted new guidelines, matching the citation guidelines of other legal journals and publications, such as the Journal of European Community Law (RDCE). The purpose of this change is to conform to international standards of academic publishing and to favour and facilitate the visibility and impact of our publications.

Authors submitting their papers to the RGDE are requested to adjust their manuscripts to these new standards.

Bibliographical citations

Citations of books and articles in the text shall appear in the body of the text and not in footnotes. Footnotes whose only content is the indication of the source shall not be used.

Citations shall correspond to a reference in the final bibliography and will be referenced using the Harvard author-et al. system: by indicating in parentheses the author's surname in sentence case letters and a coma followed by the year and a colon and page of the publication.

Examples:

— A single author shall be cited with both surnames (if applicable):

(Rodríguez Iglesias, 2012: 72), (Louis, 2015)

— Papers with two authors are cited by their first surnames joined by "and"

(Mangas y Liñán, 2014: 87-120)

— If the work of three or more authors is cited, it is sufficient to cite the first author followed by et al.:

(Martín Rodríguez et al., 2006), (Kilpatrick et al., 2014: 23-24)

— If several papers by one author or group of authors from the same year are cited, a, b, c... should be added after the year:

(Del Valle Gálvez, 2003a)

— When the surname of the cited author is part of the text of the work, the year and page(s) - if applicable - of the cited work should always be indicated in parentheses:

As Cascales (2010: 22) has stated...

As Gosalbo Bono affirms «The ratio decidendi of the ruling could also serve as a basis for challenging other trade agreements» (2016: 74)

Footnotes

Footnotes shall be placed at the bottom of the page. They should be numbered in Arabic numerals and in superscript format. They will only contain additional text or, if absolutely necessary, they will be shortened. In no case will they include complete bibliographical references, which will be included at the end of the contribution.

Case-law

When a reference to case-law is made in the main text, use italics to refer to its commonly used name.

As the CJEU held in the Melloni judgment...

The AETR case law obliges the...

The ECtHR in the Soering case,...

Court decisions cited will be accompanied by their full citation in a footnote. When citing international, European and national case law, authors may follow the general criteria used in the place of origin, and, whenever possible, shall indicate the European case-law identifier (ECLI). If the ECLI is used, no additional references to case law collection or official publications will be necessary.

If in doubt, the official citation may be replaced by the following version:
Decision/Judgment of the (judicial body) of (date), (name/number of the case), (ECLI).

Examples:

Court of Justice of the European Union [\[official citation method\]](#)

Judgment of the Court of Justice of 15 May 1986, Johnston, 222/84, EU:C:1986:206.
Judgment of the General Court of 30 September 2010, Kadi/Comisión, T-85/09,
EU:T:2010:418, paragraph 78.

Opinion of the Advocate General Jacobs, Unión de Pequeños Agricultores/Consejo, C-50/00 P, EU:C:2002:197, paragraph 199.

- The names of cases shall always be shortened (as they appear in the headings of the judgments). For example, the case name is “Johnson”, as opposed to “Johnston vs. Chief Constable of the Royal Ulster Constabulary”.
- In the official citation case names are not in italics.

European Court of Human Rights [\[official citation method\]](#)

Campbell vs. Ireland [GC], no. 45678/98, § 24, ECHR 1999-II.

Campbell vs. Ireland, no. 45678/98, § 24, ECHR 1999-II.

Campbell vs. Ireland (dec.), no. 45678/98, ECHR 1999-II.

It is recommended to alternatively use the ECLI citation according to the following version:

ECtHR Judgment of 17 January 2012, Zontul v. Greece,
EC:ECHR:2012:0117JUD001229407

Legislation and other official documents

Legal acts and other official documents shall be cited in a footnote with reference to their official publication, if any:

Directive 2008/115/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 December 2008 on common standards and procedures in Member States for returning illegally staying third-country nationals (OJ L 348, 24 December 2008, p. 98)

Bibliography

- To be included at the end of the articles as a final list of cited works.
- It will only contain references cited in the text. Therefore, it is expressly forbidden to include additional references.
- It will follow the APA (American Psychological Association) referencing style.
- It will be ordered alphabetically by the author's first surname.
